Speaker Hammonds urges graduates to keep a positive attitude

Proceeding into MBNA America Hall, the graduating class of 2003 was inspired by the keynote address given by Bruce L. Hammonds, Chairman and CEO of MBNA America Bank and a member of the College's Board of Trustees.

Mr. Hammonds assured the graduates that they had what they needed to achieve a successful future, and he persuaded them that their "future" began with their commencement. To enable them to discover the inner strength to succeed, he urged them to:

- Appreciate themselves and recognize their strengths.
- Make an effort to consciously recognize the good fortune in every day occurrences.
- Help others who are less fortunate.
- Appreciate what they have and not worry about what they don't have.
- Have the fortitude to face difficulties and hard times with a positive attitude.

This positive attitude energizes a person and creates an excitement that is contagious, reported Mr. Hammonds. The graduates were advised to remember that people cannot control the events that befall them, but they can control how they react to these events. A will to succeed will enable them to overcome challenges and to seize opportunities.

Continuing, he noted how important "attitude" is at MBNA and reported that over 400 Goldey-Beacom students and graduates work there.

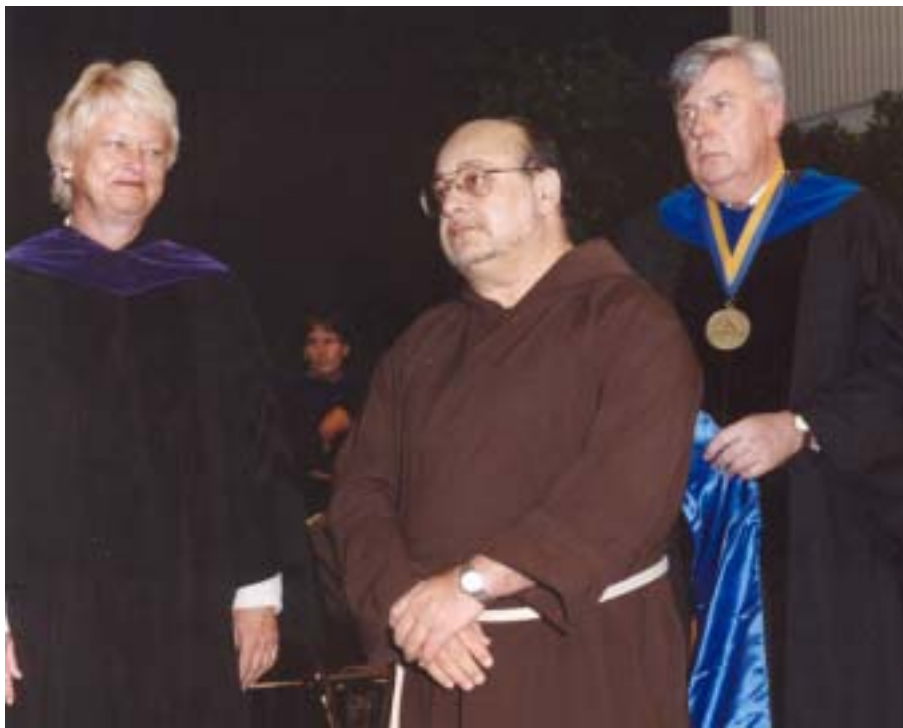

Later in the ceremony, Mr. Hammonds and Brother Ronald Giannone received honorary degrees. Mr. Hammonds was named Doctor of Business Administration in recognition of his extensive achievements at MBNA America Bank as well as for his deep commitment to the community. Brother Giannone was named Doctor of Humane Letters for his work with the poor through the Ministry of Caring, a network founded by Brother Giannone consisting of volunteer agencies that help to fulfill his belief that "the poor should not be treated poorly."

Excellence in Teaching Award was presented to Dr. Deborah Leitsch.

All 349 graduates were eager to receive their diplomas and to be recognized for their achievements on a very spectacular night at the College.

Bruce L. Hammonds, Chairman and CEO of MBNA America Bank, was this year's keynote speaker at graduation. In his address to the graduates, he emphasized the importance of having a positive attitude and a will to succeed to overcome challenges and to seize opportunities. He urged the graduates to share their success with others through community service. There are more than 400 Goldey-Beacom students and graduates currently working at MBNA.

Trustee Michele M. Rollins and Dr. Gary L. Wirt prepare to "hood" Brother Ronald Giannone who received an honorary doctorate from the College. Brother Giannone founded the Ministry of Caring, a network of volunteer agencies that assist the poor.

These MBA students prepare for graduation ceremonies.

Congratulations to the graduates of GBC's 116th commencement. Keep your ties to the College by becoming active members of the Alumni Association.

Dr. Mohammad Ilyas presents Dr. Deborah Leitsch with the Excellence in Teaching Award. Dr. Leitch teaches Accounting at the College.

Alumni invite seniors to annual reception

Raffaella Lo Castro's '03 real passion is singing and that passion brought her to Wilmington, Delaware, to train with a private voice coach. However, she also felt that she would like to gain an education in the business side of performing which led her to GBC via South Africa in 1997 with some assistance from the International Admissions Office here at Goldey-Beacom. Since that time she has sung at graduation ceremonies for the past three years and has earned her Marketing degree. Currently, Raffaella is performing in the Best of Broadway playing the lead, Sally Bowles, in "Cabaret" at the Bank One Arts Center through July 6, 2003.

One of the last opportunities to get together during the school year, these graduates enjoyed good company and great food during the reception.

Friends Josh Elton, Caroline Black, and Debe Enney appreciate the Alumni Association's hospitality.

Show your pride—order your GBC License Plate!
