Landgraf shares personal reflections with graduates

Vice President Dr. Gary L. Wirt hoods Kurt M. Landgraf as the recipient of the honorary Doctor of Business Administration degree.

Kurt M. Landgraf, President and CEO of Educational Testing Services, the organization that develops and administers standardized tests ranging from SAT's to GRE's to the TOFEL, gave the commencement address at this year's graduation ceremony and was also awarded an Honorary Doctor of Business Administration degree.

Early in his career and while at E.I. DuPont de Nemours and Company, he held a succession of impressive positions including CFO, Executive Vice President, Chairman-DuPont Europe, and Executive Vice President and COO. Landgraf went on to serve as President and CEO of DuPont Merck Pharmaceutical Company before assuming his current position.

Deeply involved in his community, he has served on the boards of United Way of Delaware, Delaware Association for Retarded Citizens, Delaware Care Plan, Christiana Care, Goldey-Beacom College, Delaware Public Policy Institute, and the National Alliance for Business.

A true friend of education, Kurt continues to enjoy the classroom, sharing his knowledge by teaching at such institutions as Western Michigan University, Princeton, The College of New Jersey, Goldey-Beacom College and Pennsylvania State University.

Sharing what he had learned over his 40-year career, Landgraf capsulated his personal reflections for a successful life as the theme for his speech to the Class of 2009. He stated, in life, Choose a balanced and holistic life style.

Establish a set of principles that you won't violate.

Recognize personal and business boundaries.

Take personal responsibility to give back more than you receive.

Don't be reckless with other people's hearts.

Be self-sufficient; don't expect someone else to take care of you.

And in your career, you should,

Show discretion by being careful of what you say about others; avoid the rumor mill.

Create a caring environment around you by engaging others to find out their needs.

Don't step on others while moving up the "ladder" of success.

Show compassion and kindness.

He concluded by saying, "The journey is as exciting and meaningful as you want it to be. It is in your hands."

Faculty member Dr. Robert McConkie was honored with the Excellence in Teaching Award during the ceremony.

GBC welcomes this year's graduating class as alumni and hopes they will keep their ties to the College by being active participants in the Alumni Association.

Alumni Spotlight: Sweatlock combines busy career with service to others

Karen (Muller) Sweatlock '67 is one of those lucky individuals who found her niche and excelled. The first steps towards that career began at Goldey-Beacom College. Karen states, "Actually, the business courses did a lot to prepare me in my present career, and I only wish I had gone on to get my BS degree! I especially have fond memories of the friends and roommates at school. College was a growing up period for me."

Karen's real estate career started as a suggestion from her boss. She remembers, "I actually kind of fell into real estate. I worked as a Corporate Secretary for US Homes in New Jersey for more than 7 years in real estate management. My boss thought it would be a good idea for me to get my license as it is a great career to have, particularly when raising children since your schedule can be very flexible – little did I know. I started in real estate sales part-time with Avalon Real Estate in 1980 when my first daughter was very little. The business took off, and I ended up developing a 12-unit condo complex on the intercoastal waterway with a partner in 1982. We sold them completely out in 1983 in less than one year from start to finish. The project was Top of the Inlet Condos."

She credits some of her early success to being a known and trusted member of the community. Karen adds, "In the late 70's, I owned two gift shops, one at my in-laws' marina location and one on the Sea Isle City boardwalk, and worked for US Homes while developing my real estate portfolio. Oh, and I forgot. I also kept the books and payroll (using my accounting background from Goldey-Beacom) for my in-laws' marina, tackle shop, restaurant, ship's store, boats slips and my gift shops."

The move to Florida came in 1985 after Karen sold her in-laws marina, John's Pier in Townsends Inlet. She remained in real estate after the family's move to Florida, obtaining her Florida license in 1986. She currently is a Broker-REALTOR for John R. Wood Realtors in Naples, Florida. The "Sweatlock Team" (which includes Karen's daughter Kimberly) uses the latest technology and marketing strategies along with a strong focus on personal customer service in the Naples market and is proud that ninety percent of their business comes from past clients and client referrals.

The current market conditions are challenging even for the most seasoned Realtors. Karen explains, "Florida has been hit the hardest; with neighboring communities here on the West coast, like Ft. Myers, Cape Coral and Lehigh getting the worst of it. However, the market is showing signs of coming out of the recession. Fortunately, I have had very, very good years in 2007, 2008 and now 2009. So far this year, we are seeing good results. I recently closed a property for $2,475,000 in this market. It's a great time to buy here. The prices are now down 50% than where they were in 2005."

With 35+ years of real estate experience, Karen has distinguished herself as a leader in the industry. She has received numerous designations, such as Accredited Buyer Representative, Certified Residential Specialist, Graduate REALTORS® Institute, Leadership Training Graduate and Performance Management Network. Moreover, Karen has been a top sales producer for most of those years.

Karen is a well-established, successful Realtor in Naples, Florida. Though she has lived in sunny Florida for many years, she still considers herself a South Jersey girl.

Her career achievements were recognized in 2006 when she was named Realtor of the Year by the Naples Area Board of Realtors. Karen says she considered it the highest honor of her career and was deeply grateful for the recognition. In addition, she was named 2002 RPAC Chairman of the Year for the State of Florida by the Florida Association of Realtors.

However, Karen readily admits that her volunteer work is equally gratifying. She states, "I have served as a Director and Vice-President of the Naples Area Board of Realtors (over 6,000 members), and the 2006 award was also honoring all my volunteer work of over 20 years traveling to state, regional and national meetings for not just more educational seminars and certifications of which I have several, but for all those hours fighting for our private property rights, insurance issues and so much more. I have met and know some of the finest people in the U.S. as well as internationally, and this has been very rewarding."

Serving her profession is just one aspect of Karen's life. Being connected to her community is just as important. She has served in various nonprofit organizations such as Habitat for Humanity, American Cancer Society's Relay for Life, Big Brothers Big Sisters and Hope for Haiti. Additionally, Karen and her daughters established a scholarship award for deserving high school seniors in honor of her husband John's memory. She adds, "I now have a four year old grandson and another grandson due in August. My family is the most important thing in my life."

Since graduating from GBC, Karen has achieved much in her career. More importantly, she has found a way to balance the demands of career, family and community. Karen adds, "It is important to be generous with your time, help others and get involved." And that is exactly how this GBC graduate is living her life.

With no seniors on their roster, the Lightning hopes to build on their end of the season momentum for the 2009-2010 season.

The team notched some big wins over Georgian Court University, Felician College, Post University and Chestnut Hill College. They were propelled by Janae Weldon, who led the Lightning in points and in steals; Arielle Alford, who led defensively in rebounds and blocked shots; and Evedbone Acosta, who led in assists and steals. The only senior, Kellyn Nolan, led on and off the court, and earned honorable mention on the All-CACC team.

The Lightning golf team headed to the NCAA Atlantic/East Super Regional golf tournament for the second time in three years under Head Coach John Asbell. They were ranked 4th in the Northeast Region after an impressive spring season.

New Degree Programs

The College is pleased to be launching several new degree programs in fall, 2009. Three new graduate and two new undergraduate programs will be available to students in August. These programs have been specifically designed to meet the needs of a growing student population and the business community, and we are very excited about their inception.

The Master of Business Administration degree with a concentration in International Business Management is carefully designed to provide graduate students with the necessary knowledge, insight and background to excel in a business that is becoming increasingly and inevitably global. Recognizing that effective leadership in international business requires a range of skills, students enrolled in the program will develop knowledge and skills related to global issues in business, international capital budgeting and international marketing.

The Master of Science in Finance is a quantitatively-oriented program designed to prepare students for careers in finance. The rigorous curriculum of the degree is tailored to cultivate competent and highly trained finance professionals with robust, state-of-the-art technical knowledge and financial communication skills. The program prepares its graduates to serve in a broad range of responsibilities with distinction in financial analysis and asset management.

The Master of Science in Taxation is a unique new degree program designed for practicing accountants and lawyers, financial managers and planners, and accounting majors entering the field of taxation, providing graduates with a solid background in all major areas of taxation.

The Bachelor of Science degree in Economics promotes an understanding of the interaction and interdependence between nations, communities, and individuals that creates opportunities and challenges.

The Bachelor of Science degree in Finance harnesses the vast opportunities to create and manage wealth and wealth building opportunities that exist in modern and well functioning economies. As an applied science to manage time and risk, study of this subject is more important now than in any previous period of history.
