

GOLDEY-BEACOM HOLDS 125TH COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

President Dr. Mohammad Ilyas and E. Thomas Harvey III, Chair of the Board of Trustees, congratulate The Honorable John C. Carney, Jr.

Dr. Lynda Murray-Jackson extends thanks after receiving the Excellence in Teaching Award for 2012.

With the hall full of excitement, cheers and tears, 235 graduates entered the Joseph West Jones Center for the College's 125th Commencement on Friday, May 4. Culminating a year-long 125th Anniversary Celebration, the commencement honored associate, baccalaureate, and master degree candidates from around the world -- and from just down the street. Students from Japan, Israel, and India stood tassel-to-tassel with local graduates from Newport, Magnolia, or Oxford -- each awaiting their proud moment on the stage, heartfelt handshake, and coveted diploma.

For the first time, commencement ceremonies were broadcast live through the College website, allowing loved ones overseas (or just downstate) to watch and cheer their own favorite graduate. One international student observed, "It was so cool knowing my grandmom could watch from home, thousands of miles away." The College webmaster reports that 257 watched the live webcast, with over 400 views in the days after. Viewers checked in worldwide from such places as Turkey, Colombia, Brazil, and Germany, as well as across America. The day was also distinguished by another historic "first," the conferral of GBC's first Psychology degrees to two graduates.

U. S. Representative John C. Carney was this year's speaker, reminding the graduates of the importance of their degrees, pointing out "Education is how each generation guarantees a better life for the next." Carney emphasized that the path to success is seldom a straight line, but a journey filed with failures and bumps in the road. He encouraged the Class of 2012 to prepare for losses, declaring "You learn from losses, and the most successful businesses actually have a high tolerance for failure." Reading from children's author, Dr. Seuss, he quoted, "With brains in your head and feet in your shoes, you can steer yourself anyplace you choose." He went on to quote Seuss, "Be careful, because hang-ups and bang-ups can happen to you!"

Carney was also presented the Honorary Doctorate Degree in Public Administration. Carney's public service has spanned over 20 years, including the posts of Secretary of Finance, Lieutenant Governor, and Delaware's lone member of the US House of Representatives.

Met by a loud ovation, President Mohammad Ilyas and Academic Dean Alison White presented the Excellence in Teaching Award to Dr. Lynda Murray-Jackson, Associate Professor of Accounting. Murray-Jackson has taught at the College since 2002.

Following the ceremony, graduates and their guests lingered into the early evening, reminiscing with fellow students, staff and faculty, over refreshments sponsored by the GBC Alumni Association.

Congratulations and best wishes to the Class of 2012! More photos from graduation are available on page 8 of Reflections.

THE GIFT OF EDUCATION

Support the 2013 GBC Annual Fund

It's Fall and the hallways are full of laughter, new friends and new textbooks for a new school year. In some classrooms, however, there are empty seats. Increasingly, talented and deserving students find they cannot afford higher education -- that the classroom doors seem closed to them -- their seat unoccupied. More than ever, these students need your help.

Annual Fund 2013 kicks off in October, providing an opportunity for all of our alumni to help "Open the Doors to Education." At GBC, our mission is to make quality education accessible -- to keep the doors to education open for every talented student despite income. So each year, we ask our alumni, employees, parents, and friends of the College to give generously to the Annual Fund. Every dollar provides badly needed scholarship funding for needy students -- allowing them to enter those doors and take their seats.

We hope you will remember your days at GBC -- the excitement, the friendships, and especially the way your education here changed your life. Help us pass on that opportunity to the next generation who hope to take your seat in the classroom and follow your footsteps to a successful career. Watch for your Annual Fund letter by mail in October or visit www.gbc.edu/giving/ to learn how to give online.

Remember, even a modest gift when added to many others can change a life. Help us "Open the Doors to Education" for every deserving student.

GBC MOURNS LOSS OF FORMER ATHLETIC DIRECTOR AND BASKETBALL COACH

As former GBC basketball player Roger Palmer states, "Boots was one of the reasons I got into coaching. His ability to get the point across sometimes with fire and brimstone was one of Boots' unique qualities". Palmer goes on to recount how Boots' most memorable victory (of over 300 wins) was the win over The University of Pennsylvania 48-47 in 1976 on GBC's home court. Boots called it "GBC's greatest basketball win ever and always".

Chuck Hammond, Athletic Director for the College, states, "For over 30 years, Boots played an integral role in the success of the Goldey-Beacom Athletics program and wore many hats. He was thoroughly devoted to our coaches and student-athletes and was willing to do anything he could to make sure we were successful. We are forever grateful for the contributions that he made to Goldey-Beacom College and he will be dearly missed."

Harry C. Reed, also known as "Boots", passed away on August 13, 2012. Boots was the athletic director and coach for Goldey-Beacom College for 33 years. Prior to working at GBC, Boots was a star basketball player in his youth. He had been a salesman at Rollins Motors as well as a disc jockey at WAMS. Boots was one of the inaugural inductees of the Delaware Legends Basketball Hall of Fame.

In 1988 the House of Representatives, 134th General Assembly, presented Boots Reed with House Resolution 249 on his retirement from Goldey-Beacom College.

Boots is survived by his wife of 37 years, Linda M. Reed; his daughter Tracey A. Flowers and her husband Tom; four grandchildren Kaitlyn, Lauren, Matthew and Natalie; numerous sisters-in-law and brothers-in-law and many nieces and nephews.

"PATCHING" IT ALL TOGETHER

For nearly two decades, students have watched Professor Julie Burkey explain complex accounting concepts as she leads them through debits, credits, financial statements and balance sheets. Yet, few know of a very different side of this dedicated professor -- a remarkably creative side perfected in her home state of West Virginia.

Burkey developed a love for quilting, producing hand-made art quilts and wall hangings, carefully stitching together tiny pieces of fine and unusual fabrics to produce breathtaking results in a kaleidoscope of vivid colors. A recipient of the College's Excellence in Teaching Award, Burkey's quilt work has also earned her praise and recognition. Her quilts have been accepted in numerous national competitions and juried shows.

She explains she has no particular favorite quilt, but finds a real affection for whatever piece of work is most challenging. In one quilt, she drew inspiration from the run-off of a geyser at Yellowstone Park, in another the raucous music of New Orleans' Mardi Gras inspired her. She is currently working to master two-sided quilts, while also experimenting with photographs on fabric as part of the peicework. Burkey leaves no doubt why she enjoys such work, "I find it relaxing and creative. It's a world apart from the field of accounting."
